DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-7 are pending as originally filed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

1. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by JP-2002-018248.

JP teaches a spiral wound membrane element in which the permeate side passage material (50) has warps in parallel to the direction of flow, having width W1 200-1000 microns (paragraph 56), warp diameter h is 100-500 microns (paragraph 53), weft diameter is 50-250 microns (paragraph 54; weft can be less than 50 microns, but undesirable according to paragraph 54), which meet all the criteria claimed. See paragraphs 62-65 which teaches how the spacer 50 works as a permeate side passage material. Water vapor permeates through the membrane, which passes through the spacer 15 and through the spacer 50 as condensed water. Thus, spacer (50) is a permeate side passage material, as claimed.

2. Claims 1 and 3-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Janneck (US 4,022,692).

Art Unit: 1723

Janneck teaches a spiral wound element for dialysis in which the one of the two sides of the membrane has a spacer material with warp diameter 0.37 – 0.67 times the weft diameter (column 3 lines 40-50), specific example with warp diameter 0.85 mm, weft 0.4 mm, pitch 9 filaments/inch (column 4 lines 1-35, table), which meets the claim criteria. The actual diameters as in claim 5 is met by the reference, since these diameters can be any, as long as the conditions specified are met – see claim 1 of the reference. The reference does not specifically teach the feed and permeate side, but this would be only functional or intended use of the element.

With respect to figure 3, channel 26 has the spacer material, receives impurities from the blood flowing on the other side of the membrane. Thus the impurities are the permeate, and the spacer material forms the 'permeate side passage material'. Column 4 lines 59. Dialysing fluid is 22 and blood is 23 in the blood channel formed between the membranes 24.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 9/18/06 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Arguments are addressed in the rejection. The references teach the permeate passage material in a spiral membrane element as shown.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
